SALES NOTES FOR DEALERS:

- Former Sparks bassist (he played on the seminal 'Kimono My House') delivers fifth and final part of the critically well-received Mammal Trilogy
- 15 more tunes from the pen of 'one of the UK's greatest songwriters of the last 25 years' (Allmusic.com), plus one retooled Beatles tune
- Lavish 20-page interactive booklet with full lyrics and commentary – this material will not be published online
- CD contains tracks which will not be available in the download version
- Booklet provides entry to competition to be launched in August (limited amount of original demo-version CDs to be won). Without the booklet, you can't enter!
- Features the brass section from Germany's most demented polka band the Polkaholix
- Also features that unsung rock instrument the ukulele, played by an inbred Berliner dentist whose Appalachian forebears composed many of today's rock classics, only to have them stolen by piratical European music publishers
- Artist website relaunch in July
- Extensive UK PR campaign aimed at print, on-line and UK radio for July and August, including regional radio interviews
- Full online promo via large artist fan base and selected social networks

RADIANT FUTURE RECORDS

- Live dates in London to coincide with album launch
- Sparks have two biographies due out this year thanks to their recent return to fame (if not fortune)
- Album title begins with the letter 'T'

BIOGRAPHY

Bassist & composer. Former member of 'Kimono My House' era Sparks, then formed 'first supergroup of glam' Jet, who became Radio Stars. Later worked with all and sundry – Rolling Stones, Kylie Minogue, Sezen Aksu and the Tiger Lillies to name a few. Waited until 2003 to embark on solo career as he 'didn't want to flood the market'. Fifth album in the Mammal Trilogy series, the earlier parts being (I) The Baboon in the Basement, (II) The Joy of More Hogwash, (III) God's on His Lunchbreak and (IV) The World is Your Lobster.
