-----
Friars

Martin Gordon talks to the legendary club Friars in Aylesbury, who recently re-opened and who will shortly close.

Which seems only fitting, given that the music world appears to be very closely related to EM Forster's 'pyramid of appetites built upon a foundation of stupidity'.

And while quoting Eddy-baby, as he preferred to be known by his intimates, we are compelled to agree with his remark that the only way to combat silliness is with cleverer silliness. He was speaking in a slightly different context, but so what.

Radio Stars

The band renew their long acquaintance with Eddie and the Hotrods. In a re-run of the 1977 Summa Madness tour, the two bands appear at the 100 Club in London's Oxford Street on January 22nd 2010. Line-up is Martin Gordon, Andy Ellison and Ian Macleod, plus Mr X the drummer. More details here.

Humbug

Do not forget that Xmas is round the corner. Radiant Future is proposing an inflation-proof, once-in-a-lifetime reduction on all items only as long as stocks last or until the end of time, whichever is sooner.

Sophisticated, boutique items include the signed and printed 'God's on His Lunchbreak, Please Call Back Companion Volume', yours for a mere 12 euros, the entire gamut of Mammal Trilogy episodes (1, 2, 3, 4 & 5), Radio Stars live in 77 and literally tons (or tonnes, if you prefer) more.

RADIANT FUTURE RECORDS

Cleverer silliness...

Please be environmentally friendly and think before you have your next thought. Is it REALLY necessary? Could you not recycle the half-baked thought that you had whilst staggering home last night? And pass it off as a new thought, thus saving the planet and creating at least half of one whole carbon football, which you can kick around behind the bike-sheds at feeding time? You know it makes sense.
